present the Twin Cities premiere of

BLOOD DRUM

a historical drama of heroic proportions

It is the year 1795.

Ch'ing landlords have taken over the land of the Hmong people, forcing the Hmong into poverty and hardship.

When Hmong swords rise in rebellion against Ch'ing gun and canon power,

What will be the outcome?

Breaking 190 years of silence about this chapter in Chinese history, Blood Drum portrays the Hmong rebellion against the Ching dynasty's exploitative ruling class (1795-1806). A historical drama of heroic proportions, the film benefits from a large strong cast movingly portraying the challenges of love, honor, betrayal, and redemption.

English translation will be projected alongside the screen. The original film is in Mandarin Chinese.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 1

11:00 am

FREE ADMISSION

Informal discussion will follow the film screening.
