ALL THE WRONG CLUES

A zany screwball farce about two former friends, Private Eye Yoho and Police Chief Robin, who try to stop a renowned gangster from getting his hands on lots of money all the while preventing a gangster war. The laughs and plot twists never stop in this breathlessly paced film which the Village Voice called "a super stylish gangster comedy" made by "the world's wittiest action director."

Starring: George Lox, Taddy Robin, Karl Marka, Eric Tsang

Directed: T sui Harb, 1981, 104 minutes

ALL THE WRONG SPIES

The zaniness and goofiness continues in part two of the adventures of Private Eye Yoho and Police Inspector Robin. This movie even tops the first in its scatter-fired punchlines and the number of crazy characters put into wacky situations. Second time around, Yoho and Robin have to retrieve a secret formula for the A-bomb and prevent it from falling into the wrong hands. Memorable performances, ravishing cinematography, and a nutty exuberance make this movie a true comic masterpiece.

Starring: George Lox, Taddy Robin, Brigitte Lin, T sui Harb

Directed: Taddy Robin, 1983, 102 minutes

FAST AS A SPEEDING JET

BORN TO DEFENSE

Je Li directorial debut is a high-flying, hard-hitting blast! Jet is a Chinese WWII soldier returning home after fighting the Japanese. But upon arrival he finds that all the credit for ousting the Japanese out of China goes to the Americans. While looking for an army buddy, Jet runs into some American soldiers who have roughed up his friend. After Jet beats one American to a pulp, intent on revenge, the American bribes a bar owner to hire Jet as a sparring partner for the bar's boxing ring. In this boxing themed movie, Jet Li's usual swift and balletic wu shu skills takes on a brisk and fierce quality. Jet Li fans don't miss this one!
